CLEARING THE WAY FOR ROOT.

By the retirement of Justice Brown a vacancy will be created on the bench of the United States supreme court. The position is reported to have been offered to Senator Knox, and declined by him, and also to Secretary Taft. The latter is known to cherish a desire to become a member of the court, but may prefer to wait until he has finished his work in Panama and in the Philippines. Should he go upon the bench in the near future, it would dispose of him as a presidential candidate, as the act would be considered a virtual renunciation of any desire to become the incumbent of the White House. In that event and the retirement of Secretary Shaw, which is scheduled for the end of Congress, the whole power of the National administration would no doubt be used to bring about the nomination of Secretary Root for President by the next Republican National Convention. He is understood to be the President's choice, but naturally with Taft and Shaw both in the cabinet, his boom must slumber.

Two important reforms are embodied in the Post Office Appropriation bill as it passed the House. Government departments are forbidden to send under their frank any mail matter that could not be sent by individual citizens on payment of the regular rates of postage. Billiard tables would hereafter be excluded from the Treasury Department's mail, and the Secretary of Agriculture would be precluded from shipping a whole carload of trees under his frank and as a postal parcel. The other reformatory provision is directed against the abuse of the mails by political committees and the "patriotic" associations which have been securing free distribution of tons of campaign literature in the guise of extracts from the Congressional Record and under the frank of some complacent Senator or Representative.

Farmer Creasy, at rest from his Harrisburg labors, will find some solace for his failure to induce the Governor to permit the introduction of trolley legislation at the extra session in the action of the New Jersey Senate in favor of permitting the electric roads to do a freighting business. Instead of injuring the business of the steam roads it is generally believed that the trolleys will prove valuable feeders and sensibly reduce the cost of farm products by reducing the initial cost of getting them on the road to market. The danger will be that the greater transportation companies will seek to control the electric service and possibly in that way somewhat lessen the public advantage.

The Altoona Tribune (Republican) remarks: The Democratic party of Pennsylvania is feeling very much encouraged. Controlling as it does the governments of Philadelphia and Pittsburg and with the assurance that the split in the Republican party will continue, the Democratic managers have a very confident anticipation of installing one of their kind in the gubernatorial chair. There are enough Republicans in Pennsylvania to prevent this, but it is not certain that they are concerned to do it.

TOURING IN THE EAST.

Col. John P. Taylor Tells the Reporter Readers About the First Part of the Trip To the Holy Land.

STEAMSHIP ARABIC
CADIZ, SPAIN, FEB 17, 1906.

My Dear Mr. Smith:

According to promise I drop you a note of our trip thus far. We left New York on the morning of the 8th of February, having real fine weather. We went aboard on the afternoon of the 7th. The "Arabic" in every way is a fine steamer, but cold as an open barn. We went to our berths not to sleep as much as to keep warm. At eight o'clock on the morning of the ninth, we arose far out at sea, no land to be seen, finding the weather more mild and the vessel warmer. The weather continued to grow milder each day until we reached Funchal, Madeira Islands, on the west coast of Africa. Here flowers are in full bloom and trees in blossom, mercury standing at about seventy. In Funchal we find a different type of people from our own. Madeira Islands rise like a great bluff out of the sea. It is like a great mountain, the tops rising 6000 feet, and this morning I see they are snow covered.

Funchal has a great history. It was here Christopher Columbus married his wife and lived some time previous to discovering America. The house in which he lived still stands.

The principal products of these islands are grapes and sugar corn. The mountains are cultivated and covered to the top with vineyards, presenting a most beautiful appearance. In every nook and corner is a substantial building constructed of stone. The building material is transported from the quarries on the heads of the natives. Funchal is a beautiful white city. The roofs of the buildings are entirely of tile. The streets are scarcely twelve feet wide and paved with small pebbles. The mode of travel on these streets is on a roughly constructed sled, drawn by oxen. Two drivers—one before and the other behind—with sharp probes to keep the oxen on the move. The sled has two seats, fore and aft, facing each other, and is covered. I feel glad that I am a Pennsylvanian and not a Portugese, the inhabitants of these islands. I think I will appreciate home more than ever, should I live to return.

We were eight days reaching this place on a very lonely sea, having sighted but one sailor. Our ship, the "Arabic," is one of the largest and finest of the White Star Line. Its length is 620 feet, nine decks, passengers on board 645, crew 317 (all English), maximum speed seventeen knots per hour. All the passengers on board are first-cabin passengers. The table is first class, three full meals each day, with a change in bill of fare each day. The boat is so massive that we scarcely feel the moving of the waves, and up to the present I have not experienced a day of sea sickness.

Our next stop will be Cadiz, Spain; thence we go to Algiers, Africa; thence to Greece, to Constantinople, Turkey; from there to Palestine, to Egypt, Naples, Rome. At Valencia, Spain, we leave the ship to go through France to Paris thence to London and Liverpool. At the latter place we meet the ship again, about the 8th of April, to return to New York.

The greater part of our tourists are ladies. We have grand lectures every day, and Sundays able divines preach to us. Dr. Wylie, of Washington, D. C., preaches next Sabbath. We also have progressive euchre parties, dances, etc.—plenty to amuse and edify.

We may all feel justly proud that we are Americans, for I think there is no other land like ours.

Very truly,
J. P. TAYLOR.

Wires on Branch No. 5.

The wires on Branch Company No. 5, Patrons Rural Telephone Company, are on the poles. The speedy construction of this line, which extends from Bellefonte to a point almost one mile east of Zion, was largely due to the energies of the company's agent, Amos Kauffman. This company, like all other branch companies of The Patrons Rural Telephone Company, is made up of the best class of farmers and citizens in the section through which the line extends, and it is only reasonable to expect that they are pushing matters to completion, and leaving no bills behind.

Pleased With Millheim.

The Centre Hall, Jr., Base Ball Club is pleased with its trip to Millheim Saturday, where, in the evening, they repeated their plays given in Centre Hall two weeks previous. The house netted them $25.00. The amateurs were greatly delighted over the kind treatment received from the young and old in Millheim. It is to be hoped that the citizens of the burg were as favorably impressed.

[As previously announced, "Write-Ups" of men and women, natives of Penns, Georges or Brush Valleys, who are making life a success in other sections, will appear in The Centre Reporter from week to week. These contributions are made by a number of writers who have kindly consented to aid in conducting this department.— EDITOR]

REV. M. I. JAMISON, ALTOONA, PA.

There is such a thing as false progress, and it is a grave question whether the endowment by millionaires of educational institutions is not detrimental to progress. An institution that lacks the vitality to maintain itself, according to the thinking of many rational minds, has no right to exist. Institutions or individuals endowed beyond their capacity to assimilate foster a false development and in so far fail to equalize our national progress And it is so in the education of the individual. He who is born with a "silver spoon in his mouth" and who has the means of obtaining an education thrust upon him, can not fully appreciate it, and much less impress others with his own personality. He can not sympathize with the poor boy and refer to himself as a self-made man. Many a man looks upon his life with regret just because what he has attained is not the result of his own efforts.

In this issue is presented a self-made man, Rev. Milton I. Jamison, pastor of the United Evangelical church, of Altoona, a man not college bred, but who never-the-less has a liberal education, a rich vocabulary, and who in his own denomination ranks as one of the most efficient workers.

He received his early training at the Beaver Dam school, in Gregg township. His father, Mr. Fred Jamison, dec'd, having taught in country schools for thirty-five years, the son followed in his footsteps, further fitting himself by attending the Millheim Grammar school, and the Penn Hall Academy under Prof. D. M. Wolf. Six years of teaching brought before his vision a new field of labor—that of the ministry, which he began in 1886 on the Nittany Valley charge of the Evangelical Association, where he served for two years. He pursued the theological course as prescribed by that church and showed himself a man who had the yeast of progress in him, so that after serving Washingtonville, Montour county, one year and Hughesville three years, he was assigned to a city church, namely, Williamsport, where he labored for four years. His next appointment was Nescopeck, two years, and then he was again sent to a city church, in Baltimore, serving four years, and since 1902 he has been in Altoona, where he is highly esteemed by his people.

Mr. Jamison is a man of few words. He works quietly; he does not advertise himself. He plans and sees ahead, and as a financial agent he has a good record. His annual report before the conference shows that something has been done in raising the church debt, as well as in bringing souls into the kingdom. In the council chamber he never argues a question, but after all have had their "say," if he sees that the decision is likely to be wrong he may just rise and say a few words. It is final. He has weight, and he is strong as a pastor. He looks after the poorest of his flock. His diary shows many calls made at the end of the year. But he never boasts of his own works.

So many churches now-a-days have not enough vitality to maintain an active Christian Endeavor Society. Mr. Jamison's church has one of the most active in that city. A recent meeting showed that eighty-seven per cent. were present, and when the secretary called the roll every one responded promptly with an original testimony. There was life there. It was an inspiration to listen to the ready and terse responses. The evening church service was conspicuous for the large number of men in the audience. A male quartet sang a gospel hymn with a power that reflected the source of their inspiration, and the pastor followed with an evangelistic sermon. At the organ Mr. Jamison's only daughter, Miss Florence, a graduate of the Altoona High school, presided, and Mrs. Jamison, who was Miss Rose Keen, daughter of Mr. Jacob Keen, of Millheim, led the congregational singing, and altogether the service was a most impressive one.

TELEPHONE CONSOLIDATION.

Huntingdon County Telephone Service to be United.

The Pennsylvania Telephone Company has just closed a contract with Saltillo Telephone Company (formerly connected with the Commercial), the largest independent telephone system in Huntingdon county, whereby the two systems will be united in one service. The Saltillo Company will make their lines metallic and place the Bell instruments in service on their entire system, which is composed of over one hundred miles of wire and includes over one hundred telephones in towns and parts of the county, principally undeveloped by the Bell people. The contract goes into effect on the first of April, and when the system is fully united and equipped it will be thrown open to the Saltillo Telephone Company the entire Huntingdon exchange and also long distance service. The patrons of the Bell company will also be benefited by obtaining service in parts of Huntingdon county that have been isolated heretofore.

This new deal will bring such points as Saltillo, Three Spring, Cassville, Calvin, Colfax, Latta Grove, Eagle Foundry, Todd, Rocky Ridge, Cook's Station and many other towns and villages in the lower end of the country. The Saltillo company has secured all of the East Broad Top territory, as well as Fulton county, in which to develop the Bell service. They will also operate the Mt. Union exchange in conjunction with their other service and this will accrue to the advantage to the general telephone system and its patrons throughout the county.

A number of other companies have been sub-licensed to operate certain territory in Huntingdon county under a contract with the Pennsylvania Telephone company, such as the Juniata and Shaver's Creek company, operating from Petersburg to McAlevy's Fort; the Allensville and Mill Creek company, operating in the valley from Mill Creek to Belleville; the Woodcock Valley company operating from McConnellstown into Trough Creek Valley, via Marklesburg and Entriken, also the several rural lines which have been organized, connecting up farming districts with the Huntingdon exchange.

Mr. Jamison has a ministerial appearance; he has the mien and aspect of a man. What he is he is by his own efforts; there is no false development in his make-up. His education has been symmetrical and a gradual unfolding of the powers within the man himself. He hasn't lost his grip either. He is growing. The world can use many men of the type of Milton I. Jamison.

TAX EXEMPTION FOR WOOD LOTS.

Looking Forward to Maintaining Timber Supply in Future, and to Encourage Tree Planting. — Exemption of Tax Recommended.

Sometimes men may be coaxed to do right things where coercion would fail and where conviction does not avail to bring useful results. Probably there is not one landowner out of a hundred in Pennsylvania who does not know that a serious economical mistake has been made and vast damage done by clearing away too large a proportion of the timber land of the State. The effect of the denudation of the land has been, if not to decrease the rainfall, to make its conservation impossible. The rains practically fall into the streams. There is even no retention of the snow in the springtime. The springs are dried up. The climatic conditions are changed; the temperature is less equable, and the alternation of floods and droughts more destructive.

Realizing all these hurtful conditions, there is not one landowner in a hundred who will set himself singly about the work of remedy. The evil is so widespread that it daunts and discourages single handed attack. Some incentive is needed to bring on a general tree-planting movement.

A bill has been introduced in the provincial legislature of Ontario (Canada) giving the local authorities power to exempt from taxation a wood lot to the extent of one-tenth of the area of any farm. Provision is made against the speculative holding of land ostensibly as wood lots for the purpose of escaping taxation by making the aggregate exemptions a charge immediately payable at any time if the land is devoted to other uses. This is intended to insure proper care with a view to productivity. It is also a requirement of the bill that the exempted wood areas shall be kept up to a certain standard in regard to the number of trees, the excluding of cattle and other essentials of scientific forestry.

By holding out a practical inducement to landowners in Pennsylvania, through a system of tax exemptions for wooded areas as supplementary to the forestry legislation already on the statute book, it might be possible to procure a more active and general interest in the task of reforestration. At any rate, some such plan is worth a trial. At this "Arbor day" time, when the grangers of the State are making up their minds what manner of men they will elect to the next Legislature, this wood lot hint may be worth considering.

Edson Fultz Pardoned.

The board of pardons at Harrisburg recommended a pardon for Edson Fultz, of Woodward, this county, who is serving a two years sentence in the western penitentiary for complicity in the robbery of the Eby brothers about a year or more ago. It will be remembered that Edson, his wife, his brother George and Harry Kessinger were all arrested for the robbery. They all plead guilty at the April term of court last year except Mrs. Fultz, who stood trial. George Fultz and Harry Kessinger were sent to the reformatory and Edson Fultz, who appeared to be the leader of the gang, was given a two years sentence in the penitentiary.

Ask County to Build Old Pike.

The physician who was called gave his opinion that the man had been dead for several hours before being discovered.

AWFUL DISASTER IN FRENCH MINE

Nearly 1,200 Men Reported Killed By An Explosion.

A NUMBER WERE BROUGHT OUT.

But a Majority of the 1,795 Are Believed Dead—Explosion Occured 725 Feet Under Ground and Flames Belched From the Mouths of the Pits, Burning Many to Death—Scene in the Chamber of Death Indescribable.

Paris, (By Cable).—A mining catastrophe of incalculable horror and magnitude has stricken the great coal center of Northern France. An explosion of fire damp at 7 o'clock carried death and destruction throughout the network of coal mines centered at Courrieres, and fire followed the explosion, making rescue almost impossssible.

The intense excitement and confusion in the vicinity pevented early estimates of the exact loss of life, but a dispatch received here at 4.35 P. M. gave 1,404 miners entombed and probably lost. At 8.45 P. M. a brief dispatch from Lille announced the total of 1,193 dead.

All France has been profoundly shocked by the magnitude of the disaster, which is said to be the greatest in the history of Continental mining.

President Fallieres sent his secretary, accompanied by Minister of Public Works Gautier and Minister of the Interior Dubief on a special train to the scene of the disaster.

The ministerial crisis was temporarily forgotten, Senators and Deputies joining in the universal public manifestations of sorrow.

The scene of the catastrophe is the mountainous mining region near Lens, in the department of Pas de Calais. There are huddled small hamlets of the mineworkers, who operate the most productive coal mines in France. The subterranean chambers form a series of unnels. Six of the outlets are near Lens and others are at Courrieres, Verdun and many other points. The output of these mines is paticularly combustible and is used largely in the manufacture of gas and in smelting. About 2,000 miners work the group of mines and, with their families, make a population of from 6,000 to 8,000 souls.

The catastrophe occurred shortly after 1,795 men had descended into the mine. There was a deafening explosion, which was followed by the cages and mining apparatus being hurled from the mouth of the Courrieres mine. Men and horses near by outside the mine were either killed or stunned. The roof of the mine office was torn off. Later the galleries caved in, and further attempt at rescue was useless.

Immediately following the explosion flames burst from the mouth of the pit, driving back those outside who sought to enter and dooming those within.

The work of attempting to rescue the imprisoned miners was hastily begun by officials, engineers and miners from the surrounding mines, who formed parties and made heroic efforts to penetrate the smoke and foul gases and bring out the imprisoned men.

The families of the entombed miners crowded about the shaft, seeking fathers or husbands and threatening, in their efforts to obtain details, to force back the gendarmes who kept them from the mouth of the pit.

The populace of the district is appalled by the disaster, which affects every household.

Those persons who were rescued were terribly burned. The latest estimates place those taken out at 591.

Throughout the afternoon the heroic efforts at rescue were continued, but nightfall brought the conviction that the entombed men had been suffocated and the dispatch from Lillie at 8.45 P. M., announcing the number of dead at 1,193, seems to remove the last hope that others may be brought to the surface alive.

During the evening a dispatch was received from Lille which seemed to give some clue to the origin of the explosion. It was stated that a smoldering fire broke out in the Cecil pit of the Courriere Mines, near Mericourt, at a depth of about 725 feet, where masonary works were proceeding. The cages in which the miners descended into pits 2, 3 and 4 were hurled 30 feet from the mouth of the shaft. A miner working near the mouth was killed and a horse was blown into the air. Some of the imprisoned miners sought to escape to the pits which remained intact and several rescues were made. The first cages came up at 10 o'clock with about a dozen half-suffocated men, who were pomptly taken to the hospital. Among them was M. Voitin, an engineer, who had attempted to organize succor.

CORPSE SAT UP; FRIGHTENED WATCHERS.

Mrs. Sherwood Was Prepared For Burial, But Was Still Conscious of Everything.

Lacross, Wis., (Special).—Conscious that she was being prepared for burial, but unable to move a mucle, Mrs. W. R. Sherwood, of Mabel, Minn., awoke from the deathlike trance just in time to prevent being buried alive.

The woman died of pneumonia, presumably, and was laid upon a bier and candles were lighted about her. The absence of the embalmer from the village prevented her body being filled with poisonous embalming fluid, thus insuring death. Just before dawn two women sitting up with the corpse were started by a wild shriek, and hurrying to the death chamber found the corpse sitting up.

BIG BATTLE IN PHILIPPINES

A Remarkble Fight in Volcano Crater.

SIX HUNDRED MOROS KILLED.

Losses of the American Forces Over Seventy.

ARTILLERY LIFTED OVER 300 FEET.

Captain Rivers and Three Other Army Officers and a Naval Ensign Wounded—Moro Constabulary Bravely Assisted the American Soldiers and Sailors in Attacking and Annihilating the Desperate Moro Band in an Almost Impregnable Fastness on a Mountain 2,100 Feet High on the Island of Jolo.

THE CASUALTIES.

Six hundred Moros, all the defenders of their mountain stronghold, killed.

Fifteen men of Sixth United States Infantry killed and five wounded.

Thirty-two men of naval forces killed or wounded.

Three killed and 17 wounded of the native constabulary.

Capt. Tyree R. Rivers, of Fourth Cavalry, and three other army officers and one naval officer wounded.

Seventeen out of the force of 44 of the constabulary engaged were killed or wounded.

Total casualties of American forces: Killed, 18; wounded, 56.

Manila, (By Cable).—General Wood reports the hardest fight that has occurred since the close of the insurrection in the Philippines. The battle, which lasted two days, was between the American forces near Jolo, Jolo Island, and Moro outlaws infesting the mountains, who defied the authority of the Sultan and raided peaceful inhabitants.

The Moros were attacked and annihilated in their unique fort in the lava cone or crater of a volcano on Mount Dajo, 2,100 feet high. The operations were directed by Col. Joseph W. Duncan, of the Sixth Infantry.

The Americans lost 18 killed and 52 wounded.

The losses of the Moros were 600 killed.

WOUNDED OFFICERS.

Among the Americans wounded were:

ENSIGN H. S. COOKE, JR., of the American steamer Pampanga, whose injuries are severe.

CAPT. JOHN R. WHITE, of the constabulary, severely wounded in the thigh.

CAPT. TYREE R. RIVERS, of the Fouth Cavalary, wounded in thigh; slight.

FIRST LIEUTENANT GORDON JOHNSTON, severely wounded in the shoulder.

FIRST LIEUTENANT ERNEST H. AGNEW of the Sixth Infantry, wounded in the hand.

FIRST LIEUTENANT WILEY T. CONWAY, eye; slight.

A naval contingent operated with the military and sustained 32 casualties, including Coxswain Gilmore, slightly wounded.

PERPENDICULAR RIDGES.

In his report General Wood says, after describing the field of operation:

"The last 400 feet of the mountain were at an angle of 50 degrees, and there were 50 perpendicular ridges, covered with a growth of timber, strongly fortified and defended by an invisible force of Moros."

After ennumerating the losses as above given, General Wood adds:

"All the defenders of the Moro stronghold were killed. The artillery was lifted by block and tackle for a distance of 300 feet and placed in a position on the lip of the crater. It was the most difficult position we ever assaulted. The resistance was literally to the death. Brigadier General Bliss and myself were present throughout the action.

"The attacking columns were commanded by Major Omar Bundy, Capt. K. P. Lawton, Captain Rivers, Capt. L. M. Koehler, Captain McClarhern and Lieutenant Johnston.

"The officers and men engaged highly commend the constabulary, who did excellent work. Their casualties numbered 17 out of the force of 44 engaged."

MOROS GREAT FIGHTERS.

The Moros are big, well-built men and splendid fighters.

Like all of the islands of that archipelago, Jolo is volcanic. During the last two years, however, most of the volcanoes have been extinct and in the dry craters water has accumulated and little lakes have been formed. Those dry craters often form a splendid natural fortification, the country around it being open and the top being eminent and easily defendable.

For eight months past the Moros have held the crater of Mount Dajo, and from there they sailed forth on journeys of depredation. The completeness of their rout and the terrible punishment inflicted upon them, as well as the presence of Generals Wood and Bliss, leads to the conclusion that the attack was well planned and carefully executed.

Snake Scared Children.

Miller, an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was sentenced to a year's imprisonment in default of $200 fine by Judge Kimball, of the District Police Court, for frightening school children with a rubber snake. LIVE WASHINGTON AFFAIRS.

Making War on the White Death.

A crusade against the spread of tuberculosis among the employes of the government service in Washington was directed by President Roosevelt, who issued an order to the heads of all departments, giving them explicit instructions as to their duties in combatting the disease. The following is the text of the order:

"In accordance with the report and recommendations of the committee appointed by executive order of December 7, 1905, to prepare a plan for the prevention of tuberclusosis in the government offices and workshops, I hereby promulgate the following order, with the object of eliminating and preventing tuberclusosis among the employes of the public service:

"It shall be the duty of the head of each of the executive departments in Washington to cause to be printed and transmitted to all of the federal buildings under his control the rules prepared by said committee to prevent the spread of tuberculosis in the buildings, and to require their dsplay by the custodian in such manner and in such number as is necessary to carry out the intent of the rules.

"It is hereby required of each department to ascertain the names of any persons in service in said department afflicted with tuberculosis, and to present to them the printed rules prescribed by said committee for their observance.

"The nonobservance of said rules shall, in the discretion of the head of the department, be considered a just cause for separation from the service.

"Whenever there is a doubt with regard to any person in the government service as to whether said person is afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis, an order shall be issued for said person to present himself (or herself) at one of the government laboratories for examination, and to present the department, from the director or other authorized officer of the said laboratory, a certificate showing the result of said examination. If a government laboratory is not accessible, the laboratory investigation shall be made at government expense.

"The surgeon general of the Army, the surgeon general of the Navy and the surgeon general of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service are hereby directed to cause a thorough sanitary inspection of the public buildings and workshops under their respective departments; and they are authorized to detail from their respective medical services a sanitary board, or boards, for this purpose. The inspection of the public buildings and workshops other than those under the War and Navy Departments shall be conducted under the surgeon general of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service. The sanitary board, or boards, thus appointed shall report upon:

"First, insanitary conditions immediately remediable; second, insanitary conditions requiring structural changes.

"The said board when entering upon its duties in any department shall report to the executive head of said building or workshop, who shall, on the repuest of the board, give such assistance as may be required.

"The sanitary board, or boards, will make reports to the surgeon general of their respective services, who shall bring these reports before the committee appointed by executive order of December 7, 1905, and said committee shall transmit a full report with recommendations to the President.

"These duties to be additional to, and not take precedence of, the regular duties of the members of the committee.

"Theodore Roosevelt."

For Clean Paper Money.

Clean paper money, was the subject of a hearing before the House Committee on Banking and Currency. Representative Gaines, of Tennessee, said the high charges of express companies for shipping paper money prevent banks from sending dirty money to the United States Treasury for reissuance. He urged that his bill for the shipment of dirty money by mail, without cost to the shipper, be passed. Mr. Gaines said President Roosevelt asked him a few days ago about the Clean Money Bill, and said he is anxious to have a measure passed ot keep the government's paper money clean. He also said Secretary Shaw is much interested in keeping money clean. It was urged by Mr. Gaines that at present much of the government's paper money carries disease germs and threatens public health.

OUTBREAK IN PEKIN FEARED

Chinese Paper Puts the Blame Upon Japan.

UNITED STATES CALLED SENSATIONAL

A Charge That the Latter, With the Support of the United States and Great Britain, Is Enforcing a Program of Progressive Reform—May be Necessary to Depose the Empress Dowager.

Hongkong, (By Cable).—The South China Morning Post, analyzing the situation in the Chinese Empire with reference to the rumors of a pending antiforeign outbreak, expresses the opinion that a revolutionary rising at Peking is imminent.

It considers this danger the result of steps taken by Japan, with the support of the United States and Great Britain, to enforce a program of progressive reform upon the Chinese government, Yuan Shi Kai, the most powerful man in China, being used as the instument for this purpose. A secret agreement between the Japanese government and the progressive party at Peking undoubtedly exists.

It may be necessary for Japan to depose the Empress Dowager unless she acquiesces in the effort to change the government.

Upon any other hypothesis than the foregoing the Post fails to understand what it calls the "sensational" attitude of the United States government with regard to antiforeign feeling in China which feeling, says The Post, does not exist. The recent massacres of missionaries were due to local feeling, the consequence of grave indiscretions on the part of the missionaries. Even the boycott is confined to the mercantile classes.

There is nothing, The Post concludes, really to justify apprehensions of antiforeign feeling or to warrant the dispatch of American troops.

Refuge For Missionaries.

Shanghai, (By Cable).—The Protestant missionaries at Suichou, Province of Kiangsi, have been escorted to Kiukaing. The Catholic missionaries at Suichou refused to leave the place, and the governor is sending another escort for them.

The Chinese concerned in the recent rioting at Nanchang, Province of Kiangsi, have confessed their guilt, but maintain that they were justified in attacking the Catholics, as the latter had stabbed the magistrate.

London (By Cable).—The correspondent of The Tribune at Peking says that Yuan Shi Kai, commander-in-chief of the imperial Chinese forces, forwarded 18 mountain guns from Tientsin to Shuntefu, 150 miles south of Peking, in the Province of Chili.

GLOOMY OUTLOOK FOR ZION.

Pathetic Appeal Made By Overseer Voliva to the Dowieites.

Chicago (Special)—Picturing a gloomy financial situation and recognizing a crisis, Overseer Voliva called upon the residents of Zion City for over $250,000 to save the community from the money-lenders and thus to relieve the present pressure and put the industries on a paying basis. As security he promised the people first mortgages on the lace factory and the printing-house. He called upon ministers to give up their salaries; he asked clerks and laborers to work for $3.39 a week, and upbraided the followers of Dr. Dowie for wearing jewelry and gaudy clothes. "Accept in pay just enough to provide for living expenses," was his urgent request, he himself declaring he was willing to live on 25 cents a week, if possible thus to keep soul and body together.

FUN TO WRECK TRAINS.

Four Men Arrested Near Passaic Confess Having Made Several Attempts.

New York, (Special).—Four young men were arrested near Passaic, N. J., charged with attempting to wreck an eastbound Buffalo express train on the Delaware, Lackawana and Western Railroad, and have confessed that this was their sixth attempt at train-recking. All of the attempts were made in the vicinity of Passaic. They said the only reason for the acts was a desire to witness the excitement which would attend a wreck. The Buffalo express escaped disaster by an exceedingly narrow margin. It was running nearly an hour late and at a high rate of speed, when the engineer saw the obstruction on the track. He succeded in bringing the train to a stop less than a car length from where a number of ties and iron fishplates were piled on the track.

Eighty-cent Gas For New York.

Albany, N. Y., (Special).—The Senate passed the bill making the rate for gas in Greater New York 80 cents per 1,000 feet. The bill now goes to the Governor, it having already passed the Assembly. The measure excepts several wards in Brooklyn, for which it provides a sliding scale.

Police Graft in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., (Special).—Two sergeants and eight patrolmen were suspended from the police department by Acting Chief of Police Gillaspy, pending investigation of charges, it is said, that will be formally preferred against them before the police board. All the men were until recently on duty in the Central District, which is in the center of the grand jury investigation into charges of "grafting."

NEW YORK LIFE AFTER HAMILTON

To Sue For Restitution of Money Paid him.

New York, (Special).—The announcement was made that the New York Life's suits against Judge Andrew Hamilton for an accounting and restitution will be begun in a few days. John G. Milburn, of counsel for the Fowler investigating committee, said: "The suits will be pressed immediately for the return of the money. I shall return to New York city at once, and there will be no delay in prosecuting the actions."

Mr. Milburn was asked about the probability of criminal action against Hamilton. He said that was entirely in the hands of the District Attorney. Mr. Milburn said that the counsel believed they had a good case against the McCall estate and Hamilton.

Hiram R. Steele, who is acting as chairman of the New York Life's investigation committee in the absence of Thomas Fowler, decided with ex-Judge William A. Keener, who is one of the committee's lawyers, to begin the actions as soon as possible, although from the present prospects Hamilton has not much property.

The report that Hamilton has returned to this country to do anything in his power to clear John A. McCall's name was discredited by the New York Life trustees. They pointed out that the Fowler investigating committee urged him to return before Mr. McCall's death. That, in the opinion of some of the New York Life trustees, was when Hamilton ought to have acted if he contemplated doing anything for Mr. McCall.

Mr. Hamilton's friends gave as his opinion that the "Judge" would not make any sensational disclosures relative to his expenditures in supervising legislation. This man pointed out that Hamilton is on record in black and white in his report to the New York Life trustees as denying absolutely that a penny of the money which he received was spent for illegal or improper purposes. After having made such a statement any disclosures to the contrary would be putting a lie in his own mouth. This man added significantly, however:

"Judge Hamilton will be amply able to take care of himself in any situation that may arise." The New York Life trustees do not believe that Hamilton can do any harm to them.

Judge Hamilton May Aid Jerome.

New York (Special).—If, according to a report, Judge Andy Hamilton returned from Paris at the instigation of District Attorney Jerome and has been promised immunity if he tells all he knows, Mr. Jerome refused to say anything about it. All questions intended to draw Mr. Jerome out on the subject he refused to answer.

It is not believed, however, that Mr. Hamilton has been promised immunity by Mr. Jerome. It is possible that Mr. Jerome may have had some communication with Mr. Hamilton, either directly or through some of the Judge's friends. Mr. Hamilton is said to have been anxious to find out if he would be made a scape goat if he returned to this country. He was informed that he would be treated the same as anyone else involved in Mr. Jerome's investigation.

Choate to Serve.

New York (Special).—Jos. H. Choate has accepted a retainer as counsel for the Mutual Life's self-investigation committee. It is understood that Mr. Choate insisted on assurance that the investigation would be thorough in every line of the company's affairs, and that he would be absolutely untrammeled in his work as counsel. There was some doubt in Mr. Choate's mind as to the propriety of his accecpting a retainer from the committee and acting as counsel for the company in the McCurdy, Raymond & Co. suits at the same time. The members of the committee assured him that his relation with the company would not interfere in the least with his work for the committee.

Emperor William's Thanks.

Berlin (By Cable).—Emperor William has expressed to President Eliot, of Harvard University, through the German Ambassador at Washington, his pleasure and sincere thanks for the magnanimous Emperor William Fund, amounting to $25,000, presented to the Harvard Germanic Museum by friends of Germany in America in remembrance of the Emperor's silver wedding.

Small Declared Guilty.

Mount Holly, N. J. (Special).—The jury in the case of George Small, the negro charged with the murder of Miss Allinson, of Moorestown, came in with a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. Small declared as the jury returned their verdict that he was innocent. He was sentenced to be hanged on March 24, at which time his companion in crime, Rufus Johnson, will also be executed.

Tragedy at a Church.

Paris (By Cable).—A serious riot occurred at Boeschepe, near Hazenbrouck, Department du Nord, caused by the authorities attempting to take an inventory of the church property there under the separation law. A butcher was killed and five persons injured. A priest was seriously wounded, being hit in the head by a bullet.

Charged With Killing Aged Wife.

Belleville, Ont. (Special)—Fred Klengbeil, aged 70, a farmer near here, is in jail charged with having beaten his wife to death. Klengbeil admits having a quarrel with his wife and beating her with his hands only. The body of the old woman was horribly battered.

City Ownership Wins in Seattle.

Seattle, Wash. (Special).—Judge William Moore, municipal-ownership candidate for mayor, was elected by the small majority of 15 votes, after one of the closest fights in the history of the city. John Riplinger, Republican candidate, was badly cut in many of the wards, and ran far behind his ticket, the remainder of which, with the exception of a councilman or two, was elected. The leaders of the Municipal Ownership party charge gross frauds in several of the wards.

At Evening Time.

Love, give me one of thy dear hands to hold,
Take thou my tired head upon thy breast;
Now sing to me that song we loved
of old—
The low, sweet song about our little nest.
We knew the song before the nest
was ours;
We sang the song when first the nest was found;
We loved the song in after, happier
hours,
When peace came to us, and content profound.
Sing the old song to me, tonight, beloved,
While I, my head upon thy faithful
breast,
See wondrous visions in the fair firelight,
And our whole hearts are satisfied with rest.
Better than all our one-time dreams
of bliss
Are peace, content and rest secure as this.

What though we missed love's golden summer time?
His autumn fruits were ripe when we had leave
To enter joy's wide vineyard in our prime,
Good guerdon for our waiting to receive.
Love gave us no frail pledge of summer flowers,
But side by side we reaped the harvest fields;
Now, side by side we pass the winter
hours,
And day by day new blessings are revealed.
The fever heat of youth, its restless
glow,
Its high desires and cravings manifold,
Its wild delights, its victories and defeats,
Have passed; and we have truer joys to hold.
Sing, then, the dear old song about the nest—
So long withheld, and yet, so full of rest.

—The Commoner.

RUNNING THE GAUNTLET.

Precisely at two o'clock on the morning of February 14th "Scotty" McLean, night-watchman in the four-story building which was the temporary fireworks factory of French & Fiske, turned down a leaf of the magazine he was reading in his warm armchair close to the basement furnace, snapped on his electric lantern, roused his bull-terrier, Celsus, from his lair in a heap of shavings, and started on his hourly tour of inspection.

Scotty was a twenty-year-old laster from the Brockton shops, who, under the double pressure of a dull season in the shoe business and a desire to see something of the country outside his native State, had drifted westward, finally bringing up in his present position in an Ohio town. The building, once a shoe factory, was occupied by the firm in the interval between the burning of their old iron shops, and the completion of their new ones.

A midwinter storm was at its height. The thick snow blew in sheets against the windows and eddied round the corners in shrieking blasts. The steam had run down in the heating boiler, and the big building was cold and lonesome. Scotty buttoned his coat tight, as, with Celsus whimpering at his heels, he trudged up the broad covered staircase built outside the northern end of the factory.

On the highest landing he unlocked the door and entered the single large room, two hundred feet long by seventy-five broad, occupying the upper floor. It took him about five minutes to make his rounds between the tables strewn with colored paper of various hues and fireworks in different stages of incompleteness. In the temporary arrangement most of the processes of the work were carried on in the great unpartitioned rooms on this floor and the floor below.

Satisfied that all was well there, he shut the door and was turning the key, when his ear caught a muffled explosion below. Celsus barked loudly.

Three jumps took the watchman to the foot of the stairs. He unlocked the door, sprang into the room, and switched on the electric lights.

Already the third floor was on fire! From a table along the eastern wall came a cracking and snapping. As McLean turned his eyes that way a rocket started with a loud whir, and whizzed across the room, scattering its fiery train over the other tables and disappearing through the window with a jingling crash.

In a little glass-partitioned counting-room at the other end of the building was an alarm box. The watchman might have gone down to the next floor and rung in from there, but that would have wasted precious seconds; in a fireworks factory things happen quickly.

Heedless of his own safety, he ducked his head, and scurried between the tables toward the office. Celsus bounded in advance, barking furiously, his hair bristling. Even then there was no small risk, for fireworks were beginning to explode everywhere. McLean's haste was disastrous, for as he rounded the last table he slipped, wrenching his ankle. An instant later man and dog were in temporary safety in the office.

There was no time to bother with the box key. McLean smashed his fist through the glass front of the little door and pulled the hook. Instantly the bells began to clang! clang! clang! from the tower a hundred yards up the street. The watchman snatched up a patent fire-extinguisher, and turned to battle single-handed with the flames. But a single look convinced him of the utter futility of any such attempt. A dozen could have accomplished nothing.

The air was crisscrossed with fiery rocket-trails, the sparks from which were falling everywhere. Had the flames been confined to one spot, it might have been possible for the watchman to master them. But now every moment was sowing fresh fires. The tables were littered with paper and half-finished pieces; the racks above were full of completed fireworks of every sort. The hands had been working overtime, and everything had been left ready for the next morning. A riper condition for a conflagration could not have been imagined.

McLean dropped the extinguisher. Conscience told him that he had done his duty to his employers; it now behooved him to save himself. Sharply conscious of his inability to do more than hobble along with his twisted ankle, he stood appalled at the volcano through which he must pass to reach the stairs two hundred feet away.

Could he ever do it? He would have jumped from the window; but a three-story leap to the frozen ground was to dangerous for legs and spine. But he could not stop where he was, for the building contained many boxes and kegs of high explosives.

Crash! A shower of splintered glass cut his face and hands, as a big rocket burst through the partition window in front of him, barely missing his head.

McLean dodged instinctively. Celsus cowered in terror between his legs. It was not safe to linger a second longer. He must run the gauntlet to the stairs.

He stumbled out into the main room. Through the smoke the electric bulbs glimmered palely. Steady discharges of fireworks shot back and forth from wall to wall; in the space between there was no security. Reflected rockets were darting in every direction. Roman candles, flower-pots, star shells rained fire. One place was as safe as any other.

As McLean hesitated, a rocket whizzing over his shoulder made him drop suddenly on his hands and knees. One of those giants might go straight through him. He did not dare to creep along the floor, for the alleys were now alive with exploding fireworks, and his eyes might be put out.

A Roman candle from an adjoining table set Celsus's hair on fire. It was too much for the bull-terrier. He turned to bit the spot and put out the flames. Then, yelping, his tail between his legs, he bolted ignominiously for the door.

On a low truck close by the office stood a large empty tin can, like a metal ash-barrel, which during working hours was wheeled from table to table to receive paper and pasteboard waste. It was four and a half feet deep and a good yard in diameter. The last rocket had quickened the watchman's wits. The instant this receptacle caught his eye he saw a safe way of reaching the door.

Grasping the can with both hands, he swung it into the air, inverted it, and dropped it over his head letting his arms slide gradually up the inside, until his palms rested on the bottom. It served as a movable bomb-proof, protecting him effectually from the knees up. Below that he must take his chances. As fast as his injured ankle would permit, he began to limp down the central alley.

The sounds from without came to him muffled. The whirring of rockets, the banging of cannon crackers, the fusillade of smaller bunches blended together into a pandemonium that would have been deafening to unprotected ears.

Whang! The impact of a rocket against the tin close to his left ear set the metal vibrating under his finger-tips. Crash! bang! A giant dynamite cracker exploded on the floor not three feet away, and the shock struck his calves like a blow from a club. He trod through several bunches, snapping round his ankles like spiteful puppies. His feet struck against all sorts of debris, exploded and unexploded, swept from the tables by constant explosions.

The can was fairly heavy, and when McLean's arms became tired bearing its weight, he let it rest party on the top of his head. The great trouble with his suit of armor was that it had no peep-holes. All the light that reached him was a lurid duskiness reflected from the floor. Now and then he banged against a table, brought up all standing, and was obliged to change his course. But he was making very fair progress when an unexpected calamity befell him.

A mine of red fire ignited under his feet. Up puffed a mushroom-shaped cloud of smoke, pungent, irritating, blinding. The suffocating fumes instantly filled the inverted can, rushing into the watchman's eyes and nostrils, until he could neither see nor breathe.

At any cost, McLean must free his lungs; already he was strangling. He threw off the can, and stood unprotected in the midst of the bombardment.

Biff! Boom! S-s-s-s! Bing! R-r-r! Bang! Bang! Bang-bang! Bang!

McLean was something more than two-thirds of the way down the alley; the door was at least fifty feet away. A pungent, lurid smoke, lighted by incessant explosions, overhung everything. Pinwheels gyrating like mad, zigzagged viciously and aimlessly here and there. Purple green and violet flames told where mines were burning. The floor shook with the deafening detonations of the dynamite crackers.

The watchman wondered if his eyes and ears would ever be good for anything again.

A crash shook the building; a partially emptied box of powder had ignited. Then on a sudden the whole room was lighted with the glare of red fire. It was a most gorgeous celebration. McLean was having it all to himself, and not enjoying it a bit.

One glance he cast into the can; but the smoke still clung there, thick and heavy. He could not put his head into it again.

Shielding his face with hands and arms, he stumbled toward the door. In its black opening he caught a glimpse of Celsus's blunt muzzle and sparkling, beady eyes peering anxiously round the jamb. Then a giant cracker barked between them, and the dog disappeared. The next instant a sight filled him with horror.

On a table that he must pass stood a wooden box, which he knew to be full of packages of strong powder used in preparing certain fireworks.

Close by it a heap of paper waste was burning, and the flames were creeping rapidly nearer. When they reached it——

Forgetting his sprain the watchman plunged wildly forward. Compared with that box even the rockets and giant crackers sunk into insignificance.

Could he get to the stairway before the fire touched the powder? Terror cramped his muscles. His eyes were fastened on the creeping flames. He passed the box and hurried on. The door was still ten feet off.

A paralyzing nightmare seemed to oppress the watchman. He felt as if his soles were glued to the boards, as if he were dragging an invisible ball and chain.

Now the door was only a yard away. Now his hands grasped the jamb. Round it he swung, and tumbled down the stairs just as the box exploded with the report of a cannon, shaking the wall beside him until it seemed almost ready to fall. On the second landing he stumbled into the arms of an ascending band of firemen, summoned by the alarm he had risked his life to give.—Youth's Companion.

RUNNING A FAST TRAIN.

Means Used in Preparing the Schedule of a New "Run" on Our Railroads.

With the physical condition of the road in readiness and the faith of all its employees in its supremacy assured, the introduction of even a record-breaking train is merely an incident. The general scheme is laid out among the higher operating officials and discussed exhaustively before the general and division superintendents are called together in conference. The details of the schedule are discussed, the general schedule formulated as to the terminal figures of each division, and the division superintendents submit a tentative table of running time, which must be approved by the chiefs of the transportation and operating departments. With this approval the running schedules are printed and distributed among the trainmen of each division a week or ten days before the new train starts. No special ceremonies announce its entrance into train life, no special instructions are issued as to its treatment. The starting and arrival time at division terminals is given, the stopping-places are indicated, with the passing time at signal towers, and every one who has anything to do with the movement sees to it that it moves on the given time, unless some insurmountable obstacle intervenes.

In order to accustom enginemen to a new degree of speed, test runs with a train of like composition are frequently made in advance of the inauguration of a train of exceptional speed. These tests disclose the evenness or unevenness of the track, the relative effect of curves or the steadiness of the trains, and the degree of power requisite to surmount grades.—Colin Studds, Eastern Passenger Agent Pennsylvania Railroad, in Harper's Weekly.

The Man On the Steps.

They were going to the matinee. She was up in the boudoir putting on finishing touches and he was sitting impatiently on the front steps.

"George," she called down sweetly, "just one minute more until I find my gloves."

Fifteen minutes passed.

"George," came from above, "wait another second. I've lost my pin."

Twenty minutes slipped by.

"George," she continued, "don't go. One moment. A button just jumped off my shoe."

Long silence. Then George calls wearily:

"Hurry a little, Ethel. If you get down in another five minutes we can make the evening performance. Matinee's over long ago."—Chicago News.

—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE OLD STORY.

"She married him to reform him."

"Has she succeeded?"

"No; supporting him takes all of her time.—Louisville Courier-Journal. nal.

THE WAY OF IT.

Fido—Does your mistress keep any pets?

Mignon—Yes; a husband and a baby.—New York Sun.

WOMAN'S WANTS.

Squilbob—The modern tendency of women, I believe, is to want the earth.

Squilligan—Well, my wife doesn't want the earth, but she certainly does want the "dust" every pay night.

MANY SUCH.

Benedick—Not married, eh? I'll bet you're fond of a girl, though.

Batchellor—Oh, yes, indeed.

Benedick—Who is she?

Batchellor—Her name is Legion.—Chicago Tribune.

FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS.

"George proposed to me in such beautiful language! I wish you could have heard him."

"I did hear him. But he hadn't had as much practice then."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

VICES.

"I suppose you prefer a cashier who won't drink or gamble?"

"Yes; and if possible we also like to get one who won't steal."

THE COURAGE OF VENUS.

The Venus of Milo explained.

"I wore elbow sleeves in the winter and they froze off," she vouchsafed.

Thus indeed do we see what women will endure for fashion.—New York Sun.

ROBBED OF A TREAT.

"Goin' to the hangin', Bill?"

"Betcher life I am!"

"Betcher life yer ain't. The Guv'ner has jest pardoned the cuss."

A STOCK EXPRESSION.

"We have nothing in common," said the steel magnate to his wife.

But she was not distressed.

She thought it wiser to have it all invested in preferred.

REBUKE OR ENCOURAGEMENT.

"He kissed her on the forehead. The proud beauty drew herself up to her full height."

"And then?"

"He couldn't reach any higher than her lips, of course."

A TRIPLE HORROR.

Sunset Sims—So yer jess had three jobs offered yer all ter once! How did yer feel?

Northern Lytes—Oh, goodness! Just like a woman if she should see a ghost, a mouse and a burglar all simultaneous."—Liife.

INTERPRETED.

"Father," asked the youth, "what is your understanding of the saying: 'The race is not always to the swift'?"

'Practically, my son," replied the wise father, "it means that in the race of life the fast men don't usually come out ahead."—Catholic Standard and Times.

PERPLEXING.

Wiseman—Here's an account of another hunter lost in the woods. Every hunter should carry a pocket compass.

Dumley—Why? How would that help him?

Wiseman—Help him to find his way, of course. You see, the needle of the compass always points to the north.

Dumley—Yes, but suppose he wanted to go east, south or west?—Philadelphia Ledger.

CAUTIOUS.

"Yes," said Miss Passay, "Mr. Shrude has called upon me several times lately, but he always brings some other young man with him."

"My dear," replied Miss Pert, "I know all about him. He's terribly cautious and just hates to be proposed to."—Philadelphia Press.

INCIDENTAL.

"The new congressman seems to be a good, amiable sort of fellow, but I wish he wouldn't put on that forced, mechanical smile when he shakes hands with his constituents."

"You mustn't mind that. It's merely one of the cortortions incident to the struggle he thinks he has to make to hold his job."—Chicago Tribune.

A REAL OLD ACTOR.

Jenks—Your father was an actor, you say.

Bragg—Certainly; Bragg, the tragedian, you know.

Jenks—Funny I never heard of him. He played Hamlet, of course?

Bragg—Sure! He originated the part.—Philadelphia Press.

New and Simple Barometer.

Dr. Eydam, a noted German meteorologist, has discovered a new and extremely simple kind of barometer. It consists of the telegraph wire which is strung from pole to pole along the roadsides.

Dr. Eydam declares that by listening closely to the sound made by the wind blowing across the wires anyone can tell exactly what the weather is likely to be several days in advance. If the wires emit a deep, mellow and sustained note, like that of an organ, it means that the weather will be showery, with possible gales. A sharp, high note foretells cold, stormy weather, with, in winter, snow and sleet.—Electricity.

Fine Ink for Fountain Pens.

It is a Manchester, N. H., man who has learned the trick of saving his typewriter ribbons and soaking them out. He says that they make the finest ink for fountain pens that is to be had. The ink is brilliant in color, lasts well and has just the right consistency to flow properly.

DEATHS

MRS. REBECCA MEYER.

The death of Mrs. Rebecca Meyer, at her home in Boalsburg, was caused by pneumonia. Interment took place at Boalsburg Monday morning, Rev. A. A. Black, of the Reformed church, officiating.

The deceased was the widow of John Meyer, who died about twenty-five years ago. Her maiden name was Rebecca Hoy, and her age about sixty-one years. For many years Mrs. Meyer was a partial invalid, being unable to walk. The mother is survived by the following children: William and John, Millheim; Joseph, Boalsburg; Mrs. John Close, Oak Hall; Mrs. Charles Corl and Miss Anna, Boalsburg.

MRS. MARIAH SLABIG.

At the advanced age of eighty-six years, five months and fourteen days, the death of Mrs. Mariah Slabig occurred at her home near Potters Mills, Wednesday morning, of pneumonia. Interment will take place Saturday afternoon. She was a widow of Jacob Slabig, and is survived by the following children:—

Mrs. James Durst, Potters Mills; Mrs. Joseph Devinney, Reedsville; Miss Jane and Howard, at home. Mrs. Andrew Immell, Troy, Ohio, is deceased.

Fertilizer Test.

The Agricultural Department of Pennsylvania State College is making preparations to conduct cooperative fertilizer tests. With a view to helping the farmers of the State to secure some information upon this very important matter of the fertilizer requirements of their soils, a simple form of field test with fertilizers has been devised, involving the use of only five plats and less than $2.00 worth of fertilizer. While such an experiment requires a moderate amount of labor and attention, it is still comparatively inexpensive and if faithfully carried out will be likely to give information of great value.

The Station, in all cases, will furnish full directions for the experiment and suitable blanks for recording the results. It is hoped that many farmers will avail themselves of this opportunity, and that by means of these experiments it may be possible to secure indications as to the fertilizer requirements of different types of soil in Pennsylvania.

Bible-Decker.

The home of M. J. Decker, east of Centre Hall, was the scene of a quiet wedding Thursday evening of last week when Jacob R. Bible and Miss Nannie W. Decker, were joined in the bonds of holy matrimony by their pastor, Rev. G. W. McIlnay.

Mr. Bible has been one of Potter townships successful teachers for several years. His bride is an esitmable lady, and well adapted to the duties she has assumed.

Mr. Bible will move from his present residence, near Potters Mills, to Milroy in the near future.

The best wishes of their many friends go with the newly-married couple.

Closing P. O.'s.

The Penn Hall postoffice was closed Wednesday, and on the last of this month the Potters Mills postoffice will be discontinued.

Spring Mills.

Mrs. J. K. Bitner and Mrs. C. A. Krape spent several days last week visiting their sister, Mrs. P. H. Meyer, of Bellefonte.

David Sowers, Jr., accompanied by his wife, is visiting his parents in this place. Mr. Sowers resides in Watsontown.

Mrs. H. S. Braucht and son Dean, recently spent a week among friends in Howard.

Misses Bella Jones and May Barree, both of Altoona, spent a few days last week with their grandparents, in this place.

Miss Mabel Allison has been confined to the house for a week or more, suffering with tonsilitis.

Mr. Wilber, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., at State College, has been appointed a speaker for the Pennsylvania Day celebration, next Sunday evening.

Homer Zerby, who for a long time clerked in Ripka's Cash Store, resigned his position last week, to accept one with the Union Tea Company. He is succeeded in the store by Charles Smith, of Penn Hall.

Keith's Theatre.

Anna Eva Fay is engaged at Keith's Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, this week, it being her second week there. Others who are drawing large audiences at that popular vaudeville are: Waterbury Bros. and Tenny, in "Harmony Island"; Post and Russell, the cheery entertainers; Dillon Brothers, in new parodies on popular songs; Larsen Sisters, acrobats; Linden Beckwith, "The Singing Portrait"; Mullen and Corelli, comedy acrobats. Mr. Frederick Leopold presents a playlet entitled "The Indian." This has to do with western life, and has never before been presented on any stage.

Supplements This Week.

This issue of the Centre Reporter contains a statement of the county finances, for 1905, printed in supplement form.

Colyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Detwiler and children spent Sunday at the home of Frank Floray, at Tusseyville.

Miss Emma Swartz is critically ill at this writing. Hope for her speedy recovery.

G. B. Lee moved his household goods to Milton Monday. He was accompanied by Miss Myra Rockey, who will spend some time there.

Quite a number of people gathered at the home of William Moyer Saturday evening, where they were entertained by organ music and by the Colyer Mills Orchestra. After doing justice to the choice refreshments they returned home. All enjoyed themselves very much.

A Merry Surprise.

Mrs. H. F. Rossman, of Spring Mills, gave a surprise party in honor of her husband, the genial merchant, last Wednesday evening. It was so well managed by the members of his family that Mr. Rossman knew nothing about the affair until he closed the store for the night and came into the house, where he found a room full of guests who laid hands on him and gave him "a hist."

After listening to some splendid music rendered by Messrs. C. E. Zeigler, Frank McClellan and J. P. Osman, and partaking of a splendid repast, the party presented Mr. Rossman with an easy chair in which to rest his weary person.

The following gentlemen composed the party: C. P. Long, Dr. H. S. Braucht, Harry Allison, Prof. C. E. Zeigler, J. P. Osman, J. O. Beatty, C. A. Krape, John Myers, Robert Smith, W. O. Gramley, Frank McClellan and Rev. G. W. McIlnay.

Caught in the Act.

Edward Brown, proprietor of the Brown block, Bellefonte, was caught in the act of stealing from one of his tenants, very early the other morning. E. T. Roan, a grocer in the Brown block, had been missing goods for some time, and finally his clerks agreed to watch the premises with the above result. He was arrested and taken to jail, but later was released on bail.

A search warrant revealed a lot of goods, supposed to have been stolen, at the home of Charles Brown, a cousin of Edward Brown's.

LOCALS

J. B. White was home to visit his family this week.

Mrs. W. Gross Mingle and son Philip, of Bellefonte, are spending this week in Centre Hall.

Today (Thursday) Foster V. Jodon, Jr., moves from near Centre Hall to near Bellefonte. The past year he farmed on the Huston farm for D. K. Keller.

Dr. H. F. Bitner, of Millersville, is in town, and will remain for about a week. He is looking after his interests connected with his two farms on the Boalsburg road, west of Old Fort.

Clement Dale, Esq., of Bellefonte, was in town the other day to defend a defendant in a suit before Justice W. B. Mingle. Lawyer Dale is well and favorably known on this side of Centre county.

In the case of Grove vs. Durst, Justice Mingle gave judgment against the defendant. The suit was brought to recover a bill of costs. This decision does not cover another point disputed by Mr. Durst.

Rev. H. W. Buck and Rev. M. I. Jamison, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Geary last week. Rev. Jamison was transferred by the conference from Altoona to the Baltimore Memorial church.

Among the callers at the Reporter office Saturday was Miss Edith Royer, of near Centre Hall. She and a brother, who administered on the estate of their mother, will make sale of the decendents stock and implements on the Royer farm. M. N. Miller will hereafter farm the place.

THE TEACHERS' PENSION FUND.

A pension fund for school teachers is being talked of in every gathering that has to do with educational matters. If the teachers' pension fund is to be created the best way to do so would doubtless be to ask the help of the prospective beneficiaries, the teachers themselves. To raise the fund by taxation would be unfair to other public employes, who would feel entitled to like benefits, and the logical outcome would be a demand for old age and disability pensions at State expense for the whole community.

Any plan involving compulsion, in form of an annual assessment to be deducted from the teachers' salaries, cannot be too strongly condemned. Insurance against the contingencies of death, old age and disability should commend itself to everybody, school teachers not excluded, as a measure of precaution; but it should be left to the volition of the individual whether he or she make such desirable provision by savings, by the purchase of a policy in an insurance company or by the creation of a fund to be administered by his or her employers.

It may be difficult for young and pretty school-ma'ams to realize the possibility of ever needing aid from a pension fund. Few of them look forward to a life term in the class-room. Many, if not most of them, anticipate the coming of a time when matrimony, or some undefined but agreeable combination of circumstances, will relieve them from the drudgery of teaching. A number of them, nevertheless, though perhaps only a small fraction, will grow old in the harness. Those who happily will escape this fate should not begrudge their less fortunate sisters the benefit that would accrue from a pension fund; even if it be necessary to draw on meagre salaries to contribute toward its creation

MEMBERSHIP OF RUSSIAN DUMA.

Only 28 Out of 400 Will Come From the Cities.

The 400 members of the Russian Imperial Duma must have certain property qualifications. They must be able to speak Russian and they must take the oath of allegiance, on election. They will draw $5 a day during the session of the Duma, and mileage at the rate of two and a half cents a mile to and from the capital. As first designed these members were to be elected in rather a roundabout way. Groups of electors were first to be chosen from three great classes of Russian society; the land-owners, the village communities and the municipalities. The first extension of this scheme further admitted large numbers of the artisan class, the latest developments will, it seems, admit everybody, including the army and navy, It is worth noting, as showing that Russia is still a vast, sprawling village, that of more than 400 members to be returned to the Duma, only twenty-eight will represent cities; six for St. Petersburg; four for Moscow, and one each for the following eighteen towns: Astrakhan, Kishinev, Wilna, Voronej, Rostov, Ekaterinoslav, Kazan, Kieff, Riga, Nijni Novgorod, Orel, Samara, Saratoff, Tula, Kharkoff, Odessa and Yaroslav. Compare this vast rural representation with that of England, where the city and county members exactly counterbalance each other, and we get a measure of the difference between the two nations.—Harper's Weekly.

Not a Subject for Legislation.

A bill making it a misdemeanor to fee any waiter, servant or porter connected with any hotel, restaurant, lunchroom or public service corporation is to be introduced in the Maryland legislature. The measure is not to be a one-sided statute, however but will provide punishment alike for him who proffers the tip. It can safely be predicted that should such a foolish law be enacted it will remain a dead letter and soon be utterly forgotten. However disagreeable the tipping practice may be to some people—and there is no doubt that it has come to be something of a nuisance—it is certainly not a crime, and the criminal courts can employ their time much more profitably disposing of murderers and highwaymen, of which there is a superabundance, than by wasting it on "tipping" cases.—New Orleans Picayune.

Jimmy Wanted to Know.

Jimmy was riding in an elevator for the first time. He wasn't more than four, and he was a bright youngster. The trip to the fourteenth floor was made in safety and excited no comment. Jimmy and his mother caught an express elevator on the downward journey. They had slipped past four or five floors when Jimmy caught his mother's hand.

"Mamma," said Jimmy in an excited tone.

"Yes, Jimmy," answered the mother.

"What makes the pavements go up. I never saw pavements go up like that. Where do you suppose they're going, mother?"

And of course she couldn't tell.

FARM AND GARDEN

THE HORSE STILL WITH US.

Let no one imagine that the horse is soon to become an object of curiosity. Bicycles have come and gone, and the automobile has been making considerable noise the last few years, and cutting up capers and people, while the horse has been quietly eating oats, until now the farmer with a pasture full of the right kind of horses can sell them and buy a bank. Horses have been steadily going up in price, which is much better than blowing up, as the automobile has been doing. Automobiles will come and go, may puff in and speed out, but his majesty the horse remains monarch of the road against all competition. No machine ever built or still uninvented will successfully dispute his reign. He has withstood the locomotive, merely permitting it to do the heavy work and give him an easier lift.

Inventions will crop up from time to time, but none that will dispute the horse's place in the people's hearts, for, always, excepting the human race, the horse is the most beautiful thing made of flesh and blood; and perhaps the human animal scarcely deserves to be excepted, when we consider how men and women deform themselves by foolish habits.

Fashionable horse shows are frequent all over the country, extraordinary inducements being offered for fine animals, and I see in this and other facts signs of increasing interest in the horse beautiful, with an attendant interest in breeding. Buyers are today searching the country for good horses of all kinds, and are offering better prices than were offered six months ago. Another important factor to be seriously considered is the foreign demand for American horses, which is increasing at a phenomenal rate, a shipload of horses being exported weekly. England, Germany, France, Scotland and in fact all Europe concedes that America can raise better horses for less money than any other country in the world, and Europe may be depended upon to take all the surplus stock in the country at fair prices.

Haphazard breeding is the order of the day among farmers; too often they breed without a purpose, not caring what is crossed with what, so that the result is a colt which can be marketed. The average farmer is, above all others, the man who must market his produce at a good price in order to make both ends meet, to say nothing of making farming pay; and yet he persistently neglects to take the one step which will bring him good prices. It is only by repeated admonitions, urging and prodding that he will ever be induced to take forethought enough to control by proper breeding the quality of stock he markets. Not until he does this will he make breeding pay. I will say that I am not afraid that the horseless age is upon us; not while the automobile remains blind to your actions of kindness and dumb to the sound of your voice, not while the horse is the delightful company he is, whether in the stable, under the saddle or in the harness. Certain it is that as far back into the ages as we can trace his association with human beings the horse appears as the friend and intimate companion of man. He steps down the ages decked with the flowers and wreaths of love, poetry, romance and chivalry no less than with the stern trappings of heroism and war. "Man's inhumanity to man" and beast is justly lamented; but so associated with the sentiment and necessities of man is the horse that motorcycles and automobiles will be powerless to displace him.—J. W. Grand, in the Tribune Farmer.

SHEEP ON EVERY FARM.

The percentage of farms in this province (Ontario) on which sheep raising cannot be made a profitable industry is very small indeed. There are a number of reasons why sheep should be kept on every farm. Farming has changed wonderfully during the last fifteen years. We then sold our raw products direct. Now we have become manufacturers as well as farmers, and are putting a more finished product on the market. We are using animals as machines to increase the value of our farm products. I believe that through the sheep we can get more from the feed we grow than through any other animal. Ten years ago I ventured the statement that we could double the annual value of the farm products of Ontaria by selling our grain in the form of livestock rather than in the raw state. What I then predicted has come to pass; our output has doubled. I do not believe there is any class of animal, that can do more toward still further increasing the wealth producing value of Ontario farms than the sheep.

The next point in their favor is that no class of livestock can be handled with so little labor, and one of the greatest difficulties on the farm during the last five years has been the question of labor.

The third, and perhaps the greatest, point in favor of sheep, is their quality as money makers. There is no class of meat producing stock that can be prepared for market so cheaply as the sheep. The cost of producing mutton as compared with beef is altogether in favor of mutton. I am satisfied that you can produce one hundred pounds of lamb at a cost of $1 to $2 less than it costs to put one hundred pounds of weight on a steer when winter finishing is practised, and at the same time the average selling price of well finished lambs in February and March has been from 75 cents to $1 a hundredweight more than the selling price of export cattle in April and May.—John Campbell, before the Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association in Tribune Farmer.

POULTRY NOTES.

Remember that a warm poultry-house will lessen the feed bill.

Over-crowding the poultry-house is dangerous business and should never be practiced. By crowding too many living bodies in a limited space it will surely bring disease and disaster. We know it is a great temptation to keep all the nice pullets over but we should not unless we can properly accommodate them.

Excessive cold and heat are two very important factors for us to study, for they are both very productive of disease. We should strive to make the house as warm as possible without the use of artificial heat, allowing them enough ventilation to keep the air pure. Over-heating is usually caused by over-crowding.

Fowls must have grit to digest the food. When taken into the gizzard, it grinds up the food in a rotary motion which is part of the process of digestion. Keep gravel on hand, burn clam-shells and bones, pound up all the broken dishes and give the coal ashes for a dust bath occasionally.

If the combs of your hens become frozen, do not expect them to lay until they are healed. Melt a little fresh lard, into which put a few drops of turpentine and saturate the combs with this, being careful not to use too much turpentine, this mixture will remove the soreness and help them to heal.

By having the furnishings of the poultry-house such as nests, roosts, and troughs so arranged as to permit of their being taken outside when it is desirable to clean up the premises, as the floor and house can then be more conveniently renovated and the appliances can be better cleaned outside. When building make everything about the house as simple as possible, so it may be easily and thoroughly cleaned.—M. D. H. in Indiana Farmer.

GRINDING CORN FOR SWINE.

We believe in feeding swine so that they will have something to keep them busy as well as for the best results to be obtained from the grain, so we feed the corn whole and usually on the cob until it gets hard and flinty, when it is either shelled and soaked a little to soften it or soaked on the cob. All other grains are ground because it has been demonstrated that the smaller grains go through the animals and do them but little good. Carrying out the plan of keeping the swine busy, we always have something for them to chew on—cornstalks, squares of sod, apples, potatoes and other vegetables, and we do not see that they take on fat any slower because of this plan of feeding. Pure water is given them in clean troughs twice a day, and we know they thrive better for having it.—Indianapolis News.

BUILDINGS FOR CHICKENS.

To get eggs, suitable buildings must be provided for the chickens. Do not force or allow them to roost in trees not in the barn or on the farm implements and vehicles. A definite plan and arrangement with reference to the farm poultry, coupled with a small amount of energy, will work wonders.

Coleridge's Comparison.

So great has been the affection of readers for the books that have given them delight, that literature is full of proofs of gratitude toward noble books. There have been countless comparisons and metaphors used to make clear the relation between the book and the reader. Perhaps the most original was hit upon by Coleridge, who compares an excellent book to a well-chosen and well-tended fruit tree. He says "We may recur to it year after year, and it will supply the same nourishment and the same gratification, if only we ourselves return to it with the same healthful appetite." But, though his simile pleases the fancy, it does not quite satisfy the judgment. While the fruit of a tree must yield much the same flavor always, the gratification we experience from reading must always differ according to the condition of mind of him who reads. It has been said that a traveler can bring home only what he takes with him, which means that the pleasure derived from traveling is entirely dependent upon the capacity of the traveler's mind. One's taste may change, and one's ability to understand and appreciate is constantly changing. All of which points the moral that it is an excellent thing to read a good book often, provided the intervals between readings are fairly long.—St. Nicholas.

Buddhism is the religion of about one-third of the human race.

FUTURE OF AGRICULTURE.

FERTILIZING FIELDS WITH NITRATES FROM THE AIR.

The Problem of Revolutionizing Agriculture Seems to Have Found a Practical Solution in Norway—Utilizing Vast Water Powers—German and Italian Experiments.

The problem of revolutionizing agriculture by taking nitrogen from the atmosphere through chemical processes, and employing it as a fertilizer, is undoubtedly one of the largest and most important tasks that modern chemistry has undertaken. An American company began operations several years ago at Niagara Falls, claiming to have found a successful electrical process, but its practical results have been disappointing. The problem, however, seems to have found a practical solution in Norway. According to a writer in the Cologne Gazette, plans are on foot to utilize the vast water power of that country on a large scale in producing nitrogen. One establishment of 1,000 horsepower near Christiania has already been in operation for some time, and Norwegian farmers have begun to fertilize their fields with the nitrates there produced. Still nearer to that city a much larger concern is building. It will begin with 10,000 horsepower, but will later be increased to double that amount.

A far more ambitious plan, even outranking the immense waterpower hitherto developed at Niagara, is taking shape nearly 100 miles west of Christiania on the Manely, where it drops 800 feet perpendicularly into a chasm. Above this fall, the Rjukanfos ("smoking waterfall"), will be built a dam which will make a reservoir of nearly 800,000,000 of cubic yards as a guarantee against the fatal summer shrinkage of all Norwegian streams. It is proposed here to develop 220,000 horsepower. French and Dutch capitalists are interested in the undertaking, the former through the great Paris bank, the Credit Lyonnais.

The method of separating nitrogen from the atmosphere used in Norway is that of Professor Birkeland, a chemist of Christiania. He uses electricity, but only indirectly for creating the intensely high temperatures needed to force the atmosphere to give up its nitrogen. With a current of 500 volts, yielding an energy of from 50 to 200 kilowatts, he heats a furnace to a maximum of 2,500 degrees Celsius, which produces a roaring flame four to six feet high. A current of air passed through the furnace gives off 2 to 3 per cent. of its volumn in a nitrogenous oxyde, which is converted into nitric acid, by conducting it through water. For fertilizing purposes this product is manufactured into nitrate of lime, though some chemists say that nitrate of soda would be preferable owing to its lower volatility.

Through Birkeland's method, a ton of nitrate of lime can be made yearly with one horsepower. The establishment at the Rjukanfos will therefore be able to make 220,000 tons annually. When it is mentioned that Germany alone consumes yearly 580,000 tons of Chilian nitrate of soda, it is evident that the new industry has a most promising outlook for the sale of its output. Moreover, it is estimated by competent authorities that the supply of nitrate of soda in Chili and Peru will be exhausted in fifteen or twenty years, after which the artificial product would be left in sole possession of the world's markets. The recent high advance in the price of Chilian nitrate, too, puts a premium upon the success of Birkeland's system from the start.

His method is also attracting considerable attention outside of Norway. It is reported that a German concern has acquired his patents for Germany; and experiments with a German system have already been made in Gladbeck in Westphalia, but great secrecy is maintained concerning the results reached. At least two German chemists, Professor Muthmann of Munich and Dr. Otto Scheuer of Darmstadt, are engaged in working out the problem of utilizing atmospheric nitrogen. In Italy a great establishment, which will apparently employ Birkeland's method, is in course of construction at the falls of the Tiber, at Terni, above Rome. The nitric acid to be produced here, however, will not be used in making fertilizers, but explosives. Here and at the Rjukanfos, power will be created at very low cost, not more than $6 to $7.50 per horsepower yearly, cheapness of power being necessary to the success of Birkeland's method.

WINNING HIS COOK.

The Brief Story of How One Captain Barnes Won a Wife.

In his article on "Toilers of the River" in Harper's, Thornton Oakley tells an amusing story of two river captains—Captain Barnes and Captain Sparks. Sparks had made his boat popular through the excellence of his cuisine.

"Captain Barnes struggled vainly against this tide of popularity, says Mr. Oakley, which threatened to strand him high and dry. In vain did he try cook after cook of various nationalities and of various degrees of efficiency. In vain did he advertise French chefs and imported Portuguese. In vain did he squander his carefully cherished hoard upon five musicians of Teutonic origin, who, clad in cloth of gorgeous blue and glittering buttons, would group themselves upon the deck on moonlight nights and blow uncertainly through asthmatic instruments. It was useless. In spite of all inducements Susan and her chicken still proved irresistible. Something has to be done and done at once, or the captain would have to sell the Hurricane.

"Captain Sparks was surprised one morning by a visit from Captain Barnes. 'Cap'n,' said Captain Barnes, 'that old boat of mine is gettin' kinder tuckered out. Her bottom's all but done fer by them bloomin' snags, an' Pete says he won't answer much longer fer her engines. He says they're wheezin' something terrible. So I reckon I'll put her up on the docks an' let her have a right good goin' over; an' I thought while she was gettin' fixed I'd come over here a bit, an' maybe get a bite of them things of Susan's I've heard so much about.'

"Captain Sparks was greatly pleased. Nothing delighted him more than praise of Susan, and especially when it came from Captain Barnes. So it came about that while the Hurricane lay high and dry upon the ways, Captain Barnes was to be found on board the boat of Captain Sparks. But the river-men wagged their heads knowingly when they gossiped of Captain Barnes. 'Old Sparks must be blind,' they said, 'not to see what Sam Barnes is up to, potterin' around in the kitchen there all day with Susan. The Hurricane don't want her bottom fixed. You kin see that with one eye closed, an' her engines wuz put in only a year ago last Christmas.'

"The river-men were right. When the Hurricane resumed her regular trips up the Monongahela, the following lines appeared in the daily advertisement of the steamer's sailings: 'It is hardly necessary to state that the cuisine of the Hurricane is unexcelled. It is under the sole management of Mrs. Susan Sparks Barnes.'"

IRON VERSUS STEEL.

A Comparative Discussion, Their Durability and Usefulness.

Dr. C. B. Dudley, the chemist of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has just discussed before the American Institute of Mining Engineers the relative merits of wrought iron and steel as constructive materials. His observation leads him to think that where tension or compression is involved steel is better, but where bending strains alone are to be considered iron is preferable. To illustrate the latter conviction he mentions the following circumstances, which are presumably derived from the experience of the company with which he is associated. A car axle composed of steel of which the tensile strength is from 65,000 to 70,000 pounds to the square inch will give no better service than one made of wrought iron with a tensile strength of only 48,000 or 52,000 pounds to the inch. To match iron of the quality here specified, he says, it would be necessary to use steel whose tensile strength was between 80,000 and 85,000 pounds to the inch.

Though the facts submitted by Dr. Dudley are comparatively new, they will not excite much surprise. Within the last few years steel has proved to be distinctly inferior to wrought iron for a number of purposes. The wire nail, for instance, will not withstand the action of the weather nearly so well as the cut nail. For interior work one will give about as much satisfaction as the other; but steel nails which have been employed in shingling a barn roof have been known to fail before the shingles which they were intended to fasten. Again, farmers have been greatly annoyed by the rusting of fence wire, which is also made of steel. By observing certain precautions in the processes of manufacture the tendency to rust can, no doubt, be diminished, but, whether these can be adopted or not, the history of fence wire like the history of the wire nail, furnishes plenty of precedent for the warning now given concerning car axles. Car builders and practical railroad men may desire corroborative testimony before accepting Dr. Dudley's statements at their face value, but they cannot be regarded as incredible.—The New York Tribune.

Photography in Russia.

The amateur photographer in Russia must be an enthusiast indeed if he perseveres in his fad, for, like most everything else, the photographer is subject to police espionage and that of the most pronounced sort.

The possessor of a camera must first of all take out a license. This requires him to make a record of every plate exposed and a copy of each negative must be filed with the police bureau, a second copy being placed in his private file for reference should the police at any time require it.

He is liable at any time to a visit from a police spy, who must be permitted to make a complete inspection of the premises, and should it be found that his photographs might be regarded as a pictoral map of the fortresses or royal palaces there is an excellent chance that the photographer will be sent to Siberia.

More than this, every dry plate imported into Russia is examined by the police, who frequently develop a plate selected at random in order to convince themselves that there have been no exposures made before the plate was shipped that might smuggle into the country interdicted literature or other matter.

BOX OF WAFERS FREE—NO DRUGS —CURES BY ABSORPTION.

Cures Belching of Gas—Bad Breath and Bad Stomach—Short Breath—Bloating—Sour Eructations—Irregular Heart, Etc.

Take a Mull's Wafer any time of the day or night, and note the immediate good effect on your stomach. It absorbs the gas, disinfects the stomach, kills the poison germs and cures the disease. Catarrh of the head and throat, unwholesome food and overeating make bad stomachs. Scarcely any stomach is entirely free from taint of some kind. Mull's Anti-Belch Wafers will make your stomach healthy by absorbing foul gases which arise from the undigested food and by re-enforcing the lining of the stomach, enabling it to thoroughly mix the food with the gastric juices. This cures stomach trouble, promotes digestion, sweetens the breath, stops belching and fermentation. Heart action becomes strong and regular through this process.

Discard drugs, as you know from experience they do not cure stomach trouble. Try a common-sense (Nature's) method that does cure. A soothing, healing sensation results instantly.

We know Mull's Anti-Belch Wafers will do this, and we want you to know it. This offer may not appear again.

STOP, WOMAN!

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years.

Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me."

COMMERCIAL

R. G. Dunn & Co's "Weekly Review of Trade" says: Prospects are most encouraging for continued activity in the commercial world. Seasonable merchandise is going into consumption more freely, and preparations for a large spring trade keep shipping departments busy. Mercantile collections are somewhat irregular, although satisfactory on the whole, especially in view of the firm money market

Manufacturing plants report little idle machinery, except at Northwestern flour mills, where the heavy output has exceeded demands for a time.

Railway earnings for February exceeded last year's by 28.2 per cent., but a further decline occured in prices of securities, attributed to the financial stringency.

No setback has occured in the iron and steel industry, mills and furnaces operating at the limit of capacity without overtaking orders, which come forward more rapidly than they can be filled.

Bradstreet's says: Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada, for the week, are 2,300,476 bushels, against 2,357,068 last week, 907,936 this week last year, 1,643,086 in 1904 and 3,491,486 in 1903. HERITAGE OF CIVIL WAR.

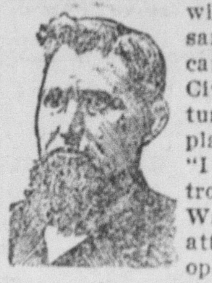
Thousands of Soldiers Contracted Chronic Kidney Trouble While in the Service.



The experience of Capt. John L. Ely, of Co. E, 17th Ohio, now living at 500 West Second street, Newton, Kansas, will interest the thousands of veterans who came back from the Civil War suffering tortures with kidney complaint. Capt. Ely says: "I contracted kidney trouble during the Civil War, and the occasional attacks finally developed into a chronic case. At one time I had to use a crutch and cane to get about. My back was lame and weak, and besides the aching, there was a distressing retention of the kidney secretions. I was in a bad way when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills in 1901, but the remedy cured me, and I have been well ever since."

Real Cause for Worry.

"Yes, I am concerned about myself. You see, of late I have got into the habit, if one may term it, of talking in my sleep," said the man who had been waiting to see the doctor.

"Ah, yes!" said the doctor. "And you want to stop it in some way? Really, it is not a cause for worry. I should give it no attention if I were you."

"But it bothers me a great deal."

"Tut, tut. You needn't feel any alarm over talking in your sleep."

"But I am afraid my wife listens in her sleep."—Stray Stories.

AWFUL PSORIASIS 35 YEARS.

Terrible Scaly Humor in Patches All Over Body—Skin Cracked and Bleeding—Cured by Cuticura.

"I was afflicted with psoriasis for thirty-five years. It was in patches all over my body. I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap, six boxes of Ointment and two bottles of Resolvent. In thirty days I was completely cured, and I think permanently, as it was about five years ago. The psoriasis first made its appearance in red spots, generally forming a circle, leaving in the centre a spot about the size of a silver dollar of sound flesh. In a short time the affected circle would form a heavy dry scale of white silvery appearance, and would gradually drop off. To remove the entire scales by bathing or using oil to soften them the flesh would be perfectly raw, and a light discharge of bloody substance would ooze out. That scaly crust would form again in twenty-four hours. It was worse on my arms and limbs, although it was in spots all over my body, also on my scalp. If I let the scales remain too long without removing by bath or otherwise, the skin would crack and bleed. I suffered intense itching, worse at nights after getting warm in bed, or blood warm by exercise, when it would be almost unbearable. W. M. Chidester, Hutchinson, Kan., April 29, 1905."

The Dread Disease Pneumonia.

We spend time and money in fighting the white scourge and one of the important measures proposed by the Iowa legislature to act upon this winter is the founding of a state hospital for consumptives. Yet it is doubtful if this disease can lay claim to a larger number of victims than can pneumonia. In the presence of the rampant pneumococcus the physician is practically helpless. The question of recovery seems to be whether the patient is strong enough to bear with the poison produced by the germ until that poison is strong enough to kill the germ itself. It is a duel to the death between patient and germ and if the patient would win he must begin to train long before he has any suspicion that the struggle is coming. In other words, he must keep in good health.—Nebraska State Journal.

Harvest of the Shears.

A reporter recently took a journey of considerable length for the purpose of interviewing a rising literary light as to his next novel. On reaching the house he discovered the author seated in his garden, engaged in earnest conversation with a little boy who had a large towel pinned around his neck. The author received his visitor cordially, but seemed rather absent-minded. "Are you willing to tell me a little about your next important work?" asked the reporter. The literary man clicked a pair of shears and patted the boy on the shoulder. "We were just talking about it as you came up," he said. "Willie thinks I ought to do it with a bowl, but I think I can do it without. What would you advise? You see, his mother has always cut it before, but she's away just now!"—Las Angeles Times.

THE EDITOR

Explains How to Keep Up Mental and Physical Vigor.

A New Jersey editor writes:

"A long indulgence in improper food brought on a condition of nervous dyspepsia, nearly three years ago, so severe that I had to quit work entirely. I put myself on a strict regimen of Grape-Nuts food, with plenty of outdoor exercise and in a few months found my stomach so far restored that the process of digestion gave me pleasure instead of distress.

"It also built up my strength so that I was able to resume my business, which is onerous, as I not only edit my own paper, but also do a great deal of 'outside' writing.

"I find that the Grape-Nuts diet enables me to write with greater vigor than ever before, and without the feeling of brain-fag with which I used to be troubled. As to bodily vigor—I can and do walk miles every day without fatigue—a few squares used to weary me before I began to live on Grape-Nuts!" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

WOLVES ARE HARD TO SHOOT.

Seen for Only an Instant, They Seem to Melt Into the Landscape.

The wolves now found in Jackson county are in size between the coyote of the western plains and the big wolves found in the Ozark region. In general appearance they bear a resemblance to the Scotch collie dog.

They live in unfrequented places, generally in the timber or along the streams, and a favorite abode is in caves or under overhanging ledges of stone.

Scratching out a shallow hole in the ground they line it with small sticks and dry leaves. Here the mother wolf takes care of her young, while the father is scouring the country for miles around in search of food.

He is rarely seen by day, and then only for an instant, for he seems to melt away like a mist into the weeds or brush, his tawny hide making it easy for him to disappear from sight.

His skill in eluding his enemies, especially human, is remarkable, and this is one of the most aggravating things about him. If a hunter succeeds in getting within gunshot of him the chances are 10 to 1 that no damage will be inflicted.

His hide is so thick and tough and is covered with such a heavy coat of fur that an ordinary discharge from a shotgun has little or no effect. With an ease that is exasperating he simply lopes out of danger and is soon lost in the brush.—Kansas City Star.

SAVED FROM CATARRH OF LUNGS SO COMMON IN WINTER BY TAKING PE-RU-NA.

Sore Throat Develops Into Bronchitis.

Mrs. Addie Harding, 121 W. Brighton Ave., Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "I have been a user of Peruna for the past twelve years. With me it is a sure preventive of colds and many other ills.

"Two or three times a year I am troubled with my throat, a kind of raw feeling, turning to bronchitis. I have had the services of my physician in each case. Two years ago, when I felt a spell coming I tried Peruna to check it, and to my delight was not troubled with the smothered and choking feeling and never have been since. I can check it every time with Peruna."

Mrs. Addie Harding.

Mrs. Virginia Caviana.

Chronic Catarrh of Throat and Lungs.

Mrs. Virginia Caviana, room 32, Cambridge Block, Portland, Ore., writes:

"I was a sufferer with catarrh of the throat and lungs for a long time before Peruna was recommended to me. I gave it a trial, although I thought at the time it would be just like other medicines and do me no good. I was pleased to find that my improvement began in less than two weeks and continued until I was entirely well. I gained nearly 15 pounds, have a splendid appetite and am grateful for what your medicine has done for me."

Nine Inches of Snow.

Fully nine inches of snow fell Sunday night. That was the greatest depth of snow fall during the entire winter. Some few took advantage of the sledding, but the character of the snow was unsuited for that purpose.

The contract for the construction of the electric railway between Altoona and Bedford will be let within the next thirty days, it is said. Improvement bonds to the amount of $1,200,000 have been issued, and the mortgage delivered to the Standard Trust Company, of New York. The line will be forty miles long, and will connect a dozen towns.

Fingers Cut Off.

Another saw mill workman had two of his fingers severed by coming in contact with a saw. This time it was Henry Knoffsinger, of Pleasant Gap, the accident happening at the mill of his grandfather, William Knoffsinger. The unfortunate man was adjusting the machinery, when a piece of iron struck the saw, which was indirectly responsible. The first finger of the left hand was cut off entirely, and the second finger was badly lacerated and the bone split. Dr. Lee dressed the wound.

The defeat in the Senate of the House Statehood bill joining Arizona and New Mexico in a single State created much joy in Arizona. The news was celebrated by the blowing of whistles, volleys of firearms, bonfires and processions. It is a defeat for the President, but is a victory of right. The whole country approves.

The profession that is most overcrowded is that of officeholder.

DEATHS.

H. M. JAMISON.

Tuesday, March 6th, the angel of death entered the home of H. M. Jamison, at Shelby, Ohio, and removed from the family circle a kind and affectionate husband and father. The Masonic Lodge of Shelby took charge of the body and prepared it for shipment to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Jamison, at Spring Mills, where it arrived Friday afternoon. Saturday forenoon the remains were interred in the Presbyterian cemetery at that place. The services were conducted by Dr. W. H. Schuyler and Dr. D. M. Wolf. A large choir sang several beautiful selections.

Harry Jamison, as he was familiarly known, was born at Spring Mills, March 12, 1872, and died March 6, 1906, making his age about thirty-four years. He was educated in the Gregg Township High School, and taught in Pennsylvania and afterward in Kansas.

He is survived by his wife and daughter, his parents and a brother, Edward, at Spring Mills; three sisters: Mrs. Hockman, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Martin, of Martinsburg; Mrs. Miller, of Tyrone; a half-sister, Mrs. Swires, of Milesburg, and a half-brother, a banker in the west.

The pall bearers were C. W. Boozer, H. F. Rossman, A. N. Finkle, Dr. H. S. Braucht, C. P. Long, members of Old Fort Lodge of Masons, and W. L. Campbell, of Lodge No. 232, at Jersey Shore.

From the Daily Globe, of Shelby, it is learned that Mr. Jamison came to Shelby in 1899, and for three years conducted a collecting agency. He was married June 6, 1900, to Miss Bertha Lamoreux, of Milan, O. Selling out his business he moved to Monroeville, where he conducted a shoe store, which later he sold and went to Bowling Green, where he again engaged in the collecting business for a short time, after which he returned to Shelby. One year ago to the day of his death he formed a partnership with C. E. Morris. The 15th of last November he was taken ill and gradually grew worse until death relieved him of his sufferings.

On the morning of the day of his death he was told that he could not live longer than four o'clock, and when the clock struck three he held up three fingers to his wife and then one, indicating that he had only one more hour to live. Shortly thereafter he passed quietly away.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Monroeville; a member of Shelby Chapter, No. 178, Royal Arch Masons, and of Mansfield Commandary, Knights Templar.

WILLIAM D. HOUSER.

William D. Houser died at his home in Bellefonte of dropsy, a hemorrhage causing his death, which followed an attack of typhoid fever. He was a son of Daniel and Eva Houser and was born in Houserville, fifty-seven years ago. He was united in marriage with Amanda C. Grove, of Lemont, who with the following children survive: Harry, Colona; Mrs. John Lambert, Bellefonte; Mrs. Jacob D. Valentine, Allegheny; Mrs. John Guisewhite, Bellefonte; Blanche, William and Edward, at home. He is also survived by the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. George Cronemiller, Pine Grove Mills; John Houser, State College; Reuben, Pleasant Gap; James and Harvey, Spring Mills; Scott, DuBois; Abram, West Virginia, and a stepmother, Mrs. Lavina Houser, of Centre Furnace. Interment was made in Shiloh cemetery.

MRS. NOAH ROCKEY.

Mrs. Noah M. Rockey died at her home, at Filmore, of pneumonia, aged seventy-two years. She is survived by her husband and seven children, as follows: John, Filmore; George, in North Dakota; Mrs. John D. Decker, Potters Mills; Mrs. G. B. Zettle, Mason, Tenn.; Mrs. W. H. Corman, Cresson; Mrs. Elmer Limbert, Millheim, and Mrs. Sadie Metchley, at home.

A. A. KOHLBECKER.

As a result of pneumonia A. A. Kohlbecker died at his home in Central City. He was a native of Germany, and came to America when a young man. During the past thirty years he conducted a hotel at Central City, near Milesburg.

Coal Prospects in Mifflin.

From the Belleville Times.

Coal was encountered recently in the new drift being run from the surface of their property by the Rocky Ridge Coal and Mineral Company at Jacobs. The vein makes a better showing than in the first drift, from which the present mining operations are being carried on and discloses six to eight feet of fine semi-bituminous coal as fine in appearance as anthracite. It was reached about seventy feet from the portal of the drift which was driven toward the basin. The new opening will enable the company to greatly increase their output.

Letter to A. P. Luse & Son.

Centre Hall, Pa.

Dear Sir: Lets have a little private talk by ourselves on business; nobody else, please, read.

You want to know how to do a cheap job of painting, and have it look good. Here it is: The cheapest thing there is in a good-looking job—say nothing about its being good—is Devoe; the regular thing is Devoe.

The reason is: Devoe goes further than anything else. Lead-and-oil is good-looking; don't go so far and costs more. The other paints are more or less short in one way or another; don't go so far and costs more than Devoe.

Devoe costs least of all: you don't mind its lasting longer, do you? We can't help it; a paint that goes further lasts longer; we can't help it.

Yours truly
F. W. DEVOE & Co.,

A Chicago Alderman Owes His Election to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"I can heartily and conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for affections of the throat and lungs," says Hon. John Shenick, 220 So. Peoria St., Chicago. "Two years ago during a political campaign, I caught cold after being overheated, which irritated my throat and I was finally compelled to stop, as I could not speak aloud. In my extremity a friend advised me to use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I took two doses that afternoon and could not believe my senses when I found the next morning the inflammation had largely subsided. I took several doses that day, kept right on talking through the campaign, and I thank this medicine that I won my seat in the Council." This remedy is for sale by C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills.

To a Smart Property-Owner.

Painting is practical work. Skill wins. It's the same with paint making.

You know 4 gallons L. & M. mixed with 3 gallons Linseed Oil makes enough paint for a moderate sized house—the best paint money can buy—because the L. & M. Zinc hardens the L. & M. White Lead and makes the L. & M. Paint wear like iron.

Buy L. & M. and don't pay $1.50 a gallon for Linseed Oil, as you do in ready-for-use paint, but buy oil fresh from the barrel at 60 cents, and mix with the L. & M.

Actual cost L. & M. about $1.20 per gallon.
